Yr Wyddfa (Snowdon) at Night Trek

Trekking Yr Wyddfa (1,085m) during the daytime is already a fantastic challenge, but by using torches to light our way with the moon as our backdrop, summiting at night brings a new sense of achievement to an already recognised charity trek!

If the weather is feeling kind, we'll take in a glorious sunrise across Eryri National Park as we descend, before tucking in to a delicious celebration breakfast at the end of our adventure.

We meet in Llanberis in the evening for event registration and briefing. Walking straight to the start we use the Llanberis Path, and our ascent should take approximately 3 - 4 hours. We'll be using our head torches to light our way and the tranquillity of experiencing this mountain at night will never be forgotten.

Day 2
We celebrate our achievements once we summit and begin our descent using the same trail. The descent will take approx. 2 - 3 hours and upon reaching our finish line in Llanberis, we celebrate with a well-earned breakfast. Please note this is a complex itinerary and is subject to change.
